

What if your mornings in your 20s were about grounding yourself, not rushing to prove something?

Your 20s are often filled with pressure, comparisons, and constant movement. A simple, intentional morning routine can become your anchor. Waking up calmly, staying off your phone for a few minutes, moving your body gently, and setting just one clear intention for the day can help you feel more present and less overwhelmed. These small daily rituals build confidence, clarity, and balance over time.
